

EWIC

Encyclopedia of Women & Islamic Cultures

Scholars Database

-  Global scholars' network
-  Experts on women and Islamic cultures
-  Easily searchable database
-  Join online through quick and easy scholar template
-  Information sharing and networking opportunities

The EWIC Scholars Database is an invaluable listing of over 3,000 scholars from all over the world and from all disciplines whose work focuses on WOMEN, GENDER, AND ISLAMIC CULTURES from a broad culturally-based rather than theologically-based perspective. The EWIC Database includes scholars who work on issues of economy, politics, popular culture, health, family systems, law, demography, arts, literature -- the full span of issues relevant to all women in Muslim majority countries and Muslim women in Muslim minority countries.

Funded by a grant from the International Development Research Center, the EWIC database will be a publication connecting scholars, students, planners, and activists with each other and with NGO's, governmental agencies, and potential employers seeking researchers whose work specifically covers issues on women and gender related to Islamic cultures.

To increase the effectiveness of the database as a search tool, we have developed a new information template to offer the most extensive and relevant information about scholars working on women, gender, and Islamic cultures. The new EWIC Scholars Template is user-friendly, easy to complete, and easy to search. If you are interested in being listed in the EWIC scholars database, please log on to the site below to complete the template.

Free public access beginning June 2006

<http://sjoseph.ucdavis.edu/ewic/author/template.htm>
Please visit our webpage to complete our EWIC Scholars Database Template.

To order the encyclopedia go to http://www.brill.nl/m_catalogue_sub6_id11342.htm.